THAT in 1869 Dr. N. E. Jones, father of Dr. Howard Jones, N. Court-st., built the red brick building in which the latter's office is located on W. Main-st and this was the first structure in Circleville in which pressed-brick and plate glass were used. Both the products and the contractor of the building came from Cleveland.

That Miss Mary Marfield, E. Main-st, has the following interesting clipping from an edition of the Pittsburgh Journal of 80 years ago: "A new journal is about to be published in Circleville, O. The editor in his prospectus, says, 'Our terms are $2 a year. Gentlemen who pay in advance will receive a first rate literary notice in case of death.'"

That the names of three Ohio counties were derived as follows:

Columbiana-co— Sometimes poets refer to our country as "Columbia" and a great many towns and cities in America are called Columbus after the man who discovered the western world in 1492. Columbiana-co gets its name from this source.

Hancock-co—The first signer of the Declaration of Independence was John Hancock of Massachusetts. He signed his name so plainly and boldly that it is now a byword. One of Ohio's counties is named for him.

Hamilton-co— Alexander Hamilton, the first secretary of the treasury and arch foe of Aaron Burr, who shot him fatally in a duel, is commemorated in the name of this county.

THAT Richard Douglas, a native of Connecticut, was probably the first lawyer in Pickaway-co. He studied with Judge Henry Bush at Chillicothe and was one of the first settlers at Jefferson, the first town in the county, established in the early 1800's.

That Ohio's official flower, the scarlet carnation, was designated by law to become the floral emblem of the Buckeye state in 1904. It was chosen in honor of William McKinley, whose favorite flower was the red carnation.

That the largest single prehistoric mound in Ohio is the Miamisburg Mound, Butler-co, located near the town of Miamisburg. This mound is 100 feet high and 850 feet in circumference and contains more than a million cubic feet of earth. The amount of labor expended to erect this earthwork may be estimated when it is remembered that probably all the material was carried to its place in small baskets that would only contain a peck or two of earth.

That Washington-co is the oldest county in the state and Noble-co is the youngest. The former was organized in 1788 and the latter in 1851. Hamilton-co is the second oldest.

THAT in 1905, Allen O. Meyers who lived north of Circleville, had on his farm a freak duck which had four legs. One pair of the feet was normal and the other pair was folded over the back, almost as well developed as the working pair. The freak lived for some time.

That Mrs. D. K. Wilson of 226 E. Franklin-st, has in her possession a silver cup which was given as a premium to her father, Jonas Burgett, at the first fair held in Pickaway-co. At this event, Mr. Burgett had the best horse on exhibit. The cup was made by M. Sage, a Circleville jeweler. The fair was held before the Civil War.

CUTTING CASE TO BE TRIED

James McNeal of Ashville Charged With Using Knife On Van Fossen.

Petit jurors of the spring and summer term of court, not those called for September, are to report at the office of Clerk of Court Ferd M. Pickett at 9 a. m. Monday to hear the trial of the State against James McNeal of Harrison-twp.

McNeal is charged with cutting with intent to kill Alfred Van Fossen, this city, at a carnival at Ashville community park over a year ago. The case has been scheduled several times but has always been sidetracked for something else. It was set down just before the trial of the John Kidney murderers but was again lost in the rush.

McNeal has pleaded not guilty and has been free on bond. He is represented by Lemuel Weldon with Prosecutor E. L. Crist representing the state.

The case will be tried before Judge Joseph W. Adkins.

AIR EVENTS BEGIN TODAY

Cleveland To Be Scene of Festivities; Several Races To End.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 27.—The finish of three cross country derbies, acrobatics and a colorful program of music and stunt flying were scheduled to open the National Air races here today.

The first race of this year's program will be held tomorrow, but the program will get under way today with completion of the Cord cup derby from the east and west coasts, respectively, and completion of two other events, the races from Roosevelt field, New York, for the William E. Leeds trophy, and the second annual contest for the Amateur Pilots association.

Arrival of the entries in the Cord cup races was scheduled as the event of the opening day. As the racers stood at dawn in Cincinnati, Roy Hunt of Norman, Okla. was leading with a total of 1591 points, and Stanley C. Hoffman of Cincinnati was second with 1071 points. Hunt was doped as the winner.

The contestants were slated to check into Akron, Ohio, 48 miles from here, at noon and were to arrive on the field here at 2:30 p. m.

AIR-RACE BOUND PLANE CRASHES

SUMMIT, N. J., Aug. 27.—A Stinson monoplane, piloted by H. W. Lake and carrying W. D. Guthrie as passenger, and bound for the air races at Cleveland, Ohio, crashed today in the Watchung mountains near the Summit golf club. The plane was damaged but neither the pilot or Guthrie suffered serious injuries. 200,000 New Jersey Democrats Expected to Hear Governor Talk

AL SMITH MISSING Second of 'Stump' Speeches of Nominee

SEA GIRT, N. J., Aug. 27.—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt was expected to strike straight from the shoulder at prohibition in an address before a Democratic rally today and to charge that President Hoover and the Republican party "stands convicted of attempting to evade and confuse" the question of repealing the 18th amendment.

He was to characterize the Republican National ticket as "high and dry" at one end and at the other end "increasing moisture."

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt will train his guns on President Hoover for the latter's stand on repeal of the eighteenth amendment when he addresses a Democratic rally at Seagirt, N. J., this afternoon.

It will be the Governor's second speech of his active campaign for the presidency and his advisors said that he intended to deal "fearlessly and frankly" with prohibition.

AL MISSING Roosevelt is frankly disappointed because former Governor Alfred E. Smith will not be present at the New Jersey rally. When Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, Democratic chief of New Jersey, arranged for the rally several weeks ago it was with the understanding that it would be turned into a reconciliation meeting between "Frank and Al."

But Smith announced a few days ago that he was not going, and with the announcement the hopes of the Democratic leaders for healing the breach between Roosevelt and Smith went glimmering, at least for the time being.

In "Hired Murder" Expose

With the confession of Ira Sams (left), 23, a mystery that had baffled police of Detroit, Mich., since last May is apparently cleared up. Sams, shown in custody, admitted that it was he who shot and killed Mrs. Mary Wysocki (inset) in a failed holdup for which the woman's husband, Alex Wysocki (right) paid him $500. Mrs. Wysocki was shot in a busy Detroit street as she sat in a parked car with her husband.

Question Warner In Basing Death

Sheriff Sesler of Lancaster, Says He Has No Evidence Against Man.

WAS IN ARGUMENT

Neighbor of Deceased Man Is in Jail

BULLETIN

LANCASTER, Aug. 27.—Edward F. Warner, 27, a farmer held in county jail here in connection with the mysterious slaying of Earl Basing, 44-year-old farm neighbor, today maintained a grim silence in face of stiff grilling by county authorities.

Prosecutor Russell Cunningham and Sheriff Gail Sesler questioned the man in relays but Warner refused to talk, they said. Warner, according to Sheriff Sesler, maintained that he was at home at the time Basing was shot and killed from an ambush in a cornfield, whereas Sesler accused the man on being away from his farm at the time.

Warner has spoken only once since he was arrested yesterday afternoon and that was to remark to Deputy Sheriff William Bellhorn that "it looks bad for me."

LANCASTER, Aug. 27.—Investigation of the mysterious slaying of Earl Basing, 44-year-old Elms farmer, today centered about the activities of Edward F. Warner, 27, a neighbor, who was taken into custody yesterday afternoon in Bexley, Columbus.

Warner was arrested for questioning after authorities learned that two weeks ago a dog owned by him was shot and killed by Basing after the animal had attacked some sheep.

HAS NO EVIDENCE

Sheriff Gail Sesler, who is directing the probe of Basing's mysterious slaying, made it plain today that he had no evidence linking Warner with the shooting.

"But we are not overlooking any angle in the case," Sesler said.

Basing was shot and fatally wounded Thursday evening as he sat astride a horse at a water trough in the barnyard of his farm near Elms. The slayer killed the farmer from an ambush in a cornfield and escaped through a nearby wood, authorities believe.

Basing leaves his widow, Ina, five children, Dorothy, 11; Evelyn, 10; Ruth, 5; Pauline and Earl, 3; three brothers, Clarence, 899 Ellisworth Ave.; Ray, 991 Bule Ave.; Columbus and Charles, Harvey, Ill., four sisters, Miss Alice Basing, 555 Linwood Ave.; Mrs. Goldie Yeager, 1800 N. High-st. Columbus; Mrs. Emma Laver, Basil, and Mrs. Albert Langley Harvey, Ill., and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Basing, who live on the Basing farm.

FLYERS, LONG OVERDUE, FEARED LOSS

Dozen Ocean Liners, on Northern Route, Watch For Traces in Sea

MAY HAVE LANDED

British Officials Believe Flyers Safe

LONDON, Aug. 27.—More than a dozen ocean liners between Europe and North America scanned the seas closely today for a trace of Clyde A. Lee and Jock Bochman, youthful American aviators lost on an attempt to fly non-stop from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, to Oslo, Norway.

The flyers, who took off at 3:35 (E. S. T.) Thursday, were due in Oslo around noon yesterday. They allowed themselves extra fuel for seven hours flying and this had been exhausted at 6:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) yesterday. The flyers have not been reported seen since the take-off.

HOPE FOR SAFETY

British air ministry officials, convinced the Americans were down, still held out hopes for their safety. There was the possibility they had landed at some remote point in the British Isles or on the continent or, if they had come down on the sea, that they might be picked up.

Their cabin, a "Green Mountain Boy," was damaged at the doors and windows along the fuselage would serve as a pontoon if they were forced down on the water. Lee said he estimated they could remain afloat several days in such an emergency, providing the ship was not badly damaged in coming ashore.

OVERSHEP SHIP

They chartered the "Green Mountain Boy," used by most liners plying between Europe and America, for the trip out for the transatlantic flight. The ship, owned by the Green Mountain Ship Co., included the Bremen, Muenchen, Laconia, Europa, Cassiopea, Champlain, United States, Empress, General Von Steuben and America on Merchant.

In view of southerly winds which prevailed over the ocean, Lee and Bochman took off in air ministry believed they had been forced off their course to the south, possibly having landed at some out of the way point on the French, Spanish, or Portuguese coasts.

The Ministry's search planes throughout the British Isles could keep lightsight to find the airmen if they had flown over.

TRAFFIC WAR RESULTS SEEN

No 'One-Eyed' Drivers Seen Friday Evening; Light Business Improves.

The "war" against drivers of automobiles with one light, appears to have had its effect upon the drivers and also business.

Garagemen and filling station operators reported Friday evening that business was fine throughout the day. A large number of light auto lighting systems were repaired and many new light bulbs were sold.

Deputy Fissell and local police officers did not find any "one-eyed" drivers Friday night. "Nevertheless the drive for better traffic in Circleville will go on," declared Mayor B. T. Hedges Saturday.

Eva Tanguay, Former Vaudeville Actress, Nearly Blind As She Suffers.

HOLLYWOOD, AUG. 27.—Slight hope for the recovery of Eva Tanguay, 54, famous stage and vaudeville actress, was held today by physicians.

Nearly blind, her $2,000,000 fortune swept away, and facing eviction from her humble cottage here for non-payment of rent, Miss Tanguay was battling against a complication of ailments.

Her sister, Mrs. Walter Gifford, said that the internationally famed actress, of a generation ago, was near death.

"Eva has a heart affliction, Bright's disease and Rheumatism," Mrs. Gifford said. "She lost her fortune in the market crash. Her eyesight has nearly failed. She is destitute—for five months she has preferred to fight her battle alone and not disturb friends about her condition."

FOUR KILLED AS TRUCK IS WRECKED

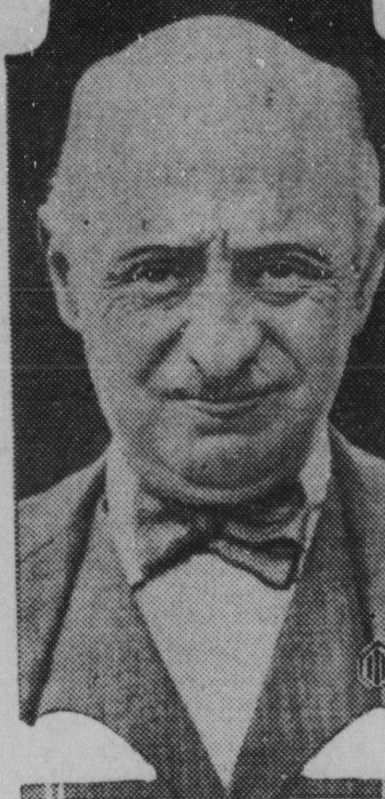

FRANKFORT SPRINGS, Pa., Aug. 27.—Four men were reported killed and several injured today when a truck, upon which they were riding, plunged down an embankment after sliding off a highway about three miles from here.

The truck, owned by the McCrady-Rodgers Sand company, was conveying 30 men to work on a highway construction between here and Harshville when the driver pulled over to the side of the road to pass another machine, the truck slipped and toppled down the embankment.

Homeward Bound

The departure of Count Henri de Baillet-Latour, president of the International Committee of Olympic Games, marked the final slam of the door on the tenth Olympiad. The Count is shown as he boarded the S. S. Malolo at Los Angeles for his native Belgium, via Hawaii, Australia and New Zealand.

DEATH TAKES LOCAL WOMAN

Mrs. George Fitzpatrick Succumbs at Hospital; Funeral Is Monday.

Mrs. Minnie Viola Fitzpatrick, aged 62, wife of George Fitzpatrick, 132 N. Pickaway-st., died at Berger hospital at 7:15 a. m. Saturday of complications. She had been ill several years and was taken to the hospital Friday evening when her condition became serious.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick was a native of Cary, O., and was born April 13, 1870 a daughter of George and Catherine Savage Lytle. She married George Fitzpatrick on Dec. 25, 1894.

They have one daughter, Kathryn, wife of Paul D. Helwagen, N. Pickaway-st. Surviving besides her husband and daughter are a sister, Mrs. John Walls of Pataskala and a brother, Lewis F. Lytle of Columbus.

Funeral services will be Monday at the home at 3 p. m. with Rev. C. H. Eichinger of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which she was a member, officiating. Pall bearers will be Fred Fitzpatrick, William Fitzpatrick, Meeker Terwilliger, Earl Lutz, Fred Nicholas and George Goodchild. Burial will be in Forest cemetery by Mader & Ebert.

OHIO FAIR TO BEGIN MONDAY

Half Million Expected To Attend During Week Manager Declares.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27.—At least 500,000 persons are expected to attend the 82nd annual Ohio State Fair, Charles M. Beer, manager, predicted here today as final, last-minute details for the exposition's opening Monday were being made.

Beer said he expected the gate revenue of the fair to total approximately $125,000. He based his prediction on the 25-cent gate admission fee.

"All we need is good weather," Beer said.

The exposition will be opened through the downtown streets of Columbus. Seventy counties of Ohio will be represented in the pageant, which will be symbolic of events in the development of Ohio. Three 100-piece bands will participate.

Judging of livestock, according to Beer, will begin at 9 a. m. Monday.

THOMPSON, DUNLAP SPEAK AT KINGSTON

Elaborate plans have been completed for the 134th anniversary of Mt. Pleasant Presbyterian church, Kingston, to be held Sunday.

Dr. W. O. Thompson of Ohio State University, and Renick W. Dunlap, assistant secretary of agriculture, will deliver addresses.

GUARDSMEN FIRED UPON BY SNIPERS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27.—Marking the first disturbance in the strike-torn Hocking valley coal fields in four days, snipers last night fired on an Ohio National Guard camp at the Chauncey No. 25 mine of the New York Coal company, Adjt. Gen. Frank D. Henderson reported here today.

FIRST LADY OF OHIO IS FACING MUCH ACTIVITY

Two Meetings Planned for Daughter of Governor Monday Evening TO MAKE ADDRESS

Monday evening promises to be filled with activity for Miss Mary White, daughter of Governor George White, when she begins a stump campaign of her own in the interest of her dad's and other Democrats' aspirations for re-election and election this fall.

According to plans announced Saturday by Miss Jimma Dungan, responsible for Miss White's

"In view of the fact that Circleville is to be honored by a visit from Miss Mary White, 'First Lady of Ohio' Monday evening, I think it is proper that the city's real hospitality be shown by a large attendance at each the Women's club meeting and the reception following that meeting," Mayor B. T. Hedges announced Saturday.

appearance here, the first lady of Ohio will attend two meetings. The first is planned at 7:30 p. m. in the Monday club room of Memorial Hall when Miss White is scheduled to make a short address to members of the newly-formed Pickaway-co Democratic Women's organization.

PLAN RECEPTION

After this meeting which is expected to last one hour, she will be taken to St. Philip's Episcopal church parish house where a reception under the direction of younger members of the Democratic party will be held. All young Democrats of the city and county are invited to the meeting.

A committee of the following has been named in charge of the informal reception: Paul E. Adkins, Dick Simkins, Leo White, Paul and Ed Smith, Miss Evelyn Adkins, Miss Mildred Barthelme, Miss Kathryn Reid, Miss Elizabeth Smith, Mr. and Mrs. George Crites, Mrs. George H. Fickard and Mr. and Mrs. Hulse Hays.

Miss Dungan stated Saturday that invitations have been issued to Chillicothe, Lancaster and Logan and that delegations were coming from each of these cities.

Mrs. Wysocki was shot in a busy Detroit street as she sat in a parked car with her husband.

Question Warner In Basing Death

Sheriff Sesler of Lancaster, Says He Has No Evidence Against Man.

WAS IN ARGUMENT

Neighbor of Deceased Man Is in Jail

BULLETIN

LANCASTER, Aug. 27.—Edward F. Warner, 27, a farmer held in county jail here in connection with the mysterious slaying of Earl Basing, 44-year-old farm neighbor, today maintained a grim silence in face of stiff grilling by county authorities.

Prosecutor Russell Cunningham and Sheriff Gail Sesler questioned the man in relays, but Warner refused to talk, they said. Warner, according to Sheriff Sesler, maintained that he was at home at the time Basing was shot and killed from an ambush in a cornfield, whereas Sesler accused the man on being away from his farm at the time.

Warner has spoken only once since he was arrested yesterday afternoon and that was to remark to Deputy Sheriff William Bellhorn that "it looks bad for me."

LANCASTER, Aug. 27.—Investigation of the mysterious slaying of Earl Basing, 44-year-old Etna farmer, today centered about the activities of Edward F. Warner, 37, a neighbor, who was taken into custody yesterday afternoon in Bexley, Columbus.

Warner was arrested for questioning after authorities learned that two weeks ago he owned by him was shot and killed by Basing after the animal had attacked some sheep.

HAS NO EVIDENCE
Sheriff Gail Sesler, who is directing the probe of Basing's mysterious slaying, made it plain today that he had no evidence linking Warner with the shooting.

"But we are not overlooking any angle in the case," Sesler said. Basing was shot and fatally wounded Thursday evening as he sat astride a horse at a water trough in the barnyard of his farm near Etna. The slayer killed the farmer from an ambush in a cornfield and escaped through a nearby wood, authorities believe.

Basing leaves his widow, Ina; five children, Dorothy, 11; Evelyn, 10; Ruth, 5; Pauline and Earl, 3; three brothers, Clarence, 899 Ellsworth Ave.; Ray, 991 Basing, Columbus and Charles Basing, 555 four sisters, Miss Alice Yeager, Lincoln Ave.; Mrs. Goldie Yeager, 1980 N. High-st. Columbus; Mrs. Emma Laver, Basil, and Mrs. Albert Langle Harvey, Ill. and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Basing, who live on the Basing farm.

Mr. Potts' contract at Laurelville had two years to run but he was granted a leave of absence of one year to take the post. His successor at Laurelville has not yet been named.

FLYERS, LONG OVERDUE, ARE FEARED LOST

Dozen Ocean Liners, on Northern Route, Watch For Traces in Sea

MAY HAVE LANDED

British Officials Believe Fliers Safe

LONDON, Aug. 27.—More than a dozen ocean liners between Europe and North America scanned the seas closely today for a trace of Clyde A. Lee and Joch Bochkon, youthful American aviators lost on an attempt to fly non-stop from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, to Oslo, Norway.

The fliers, who took off at 5:06 (E. S. T.) Thursday, were due in Oslo around noon yesterday. They allowed themselves extra fuel for seven hours flying and this, had they remained in the air, must have been exhausted at 6:00 p. m. (E. S. T.) yesterday. The airmen have not been reported seen since the take-off.

HOPE FOR SAFETY

British air ministry officials, convinced the Americans were down, still held out hopes for their safety. There was the possibility they had landed at some remote point in the British Isles or on the continent or, if they had come down on the sea, that they still might be picked up.

Their cabin monoplane, the "Green Mountain Boy," was sealed at the doors and windows so that the fuselage would serve as a pontoon if they were forced down on the water. Lee and Bochkon estimated they could remain aloft several days in such an emergency providing the ship was not too badly damaged in coming down.

OVER SHIP ROUTE

They chartered their course over the great circle shipping route, used by most liners plying between Europe and America. Ships looking out for the transatlantic plane included the Bremen, Mauretania, Laconia, Europa, Camerania, Champlain, United States, Baltic, General Von Steuben and American Merchant.

In view of southeasterly winds which prevailed over the ocean after Lee and Bochkon took off, the air ministry believed they may have been forced off their course to the south, possibly having landed at some out of the way point on the French, Spanish, or Portuguese coasts.

The Ministry's airdromes throughout the British Isles were kept lighted last night to aid the airmen if they had flown over.

TRAFFIC 'WAR' RESULTS SEEN

No 'One-Eyed' Drivers Seen Friday Evening; Light Business Improves.

The "war" against drivers of automobiles with one light, appears to have had its effect upon the drivers and also business.

Garagemen and filling station operators reported Friday evening that business was fine throughout the day. A large number of faulty auto lighting systems were repaired and many new light bulbs were sold.

Deputy Fissell and local police officers did not find any "one-eyed" drivers Friday evening.

"Nevertheless the drive for better traffic in Circleville will go on," declared Mayor B. T. Hedges Saturday.

FR. HANNAN'S BODY IS TO LIE IN STATE

The body of Rt. Rev. Magr. John S. Hannan, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic church, who died late Thursday, will be taken to the church at 2 p. m. Sunday where it will lie in state until the hour of service, 10 a. m. Monday.

The service will be conducted by Most Rt. Rev. Bishop James J. Hartley Columbus. His assistants have not yet been announced.

Henderson, 162, second class; Roderick E. Baird, 165, wood carving, camping and animal industry and Arthur Goodman, 167, star.

MEN SENTENCED FOR CORN THEFT

Two local men were given jail sentences by Mayor B. T. Hedges, Saturday, when they pleaded guilty to stealing several cans of corn from the Sears and Nichols Canning Co., S. Washington-st.

The men who were sentenced to serve three days in city prison are Richard Carpenter and Daniel McNicholas, both of Long-ave.

They were arrested at 11 p. m. Friday by Officer Ray Smith and Tom McManamy on complaint of Merle Turner, watchman at the factory, who charged that they stole nine cans of corn from the warehouse.

The stolen corn was recovered.

STEWART CAUGHT

G. Hedges Stewart, arrested here in June and turned over to Wilmington authorities by Sheriff Charles Radcliff on a check charge and who later escaped the Clinton-co jail, was captured Friday at Springfield.

William Morris, 17, who escaped with Stewart, was captured last week while G. N. Hitler of Akron, who also escaped, is still at large.

CHAS. MORROW DIES

Charles D. Morrow, former resident of Pickaway-co, died at the home of his son, Alvin, in LaFayette, Indiana, Friday morning.

Miss Alice Morrow, a sister, accompanied by Mrs. Lizzie Buck and Elmer Jensen left Saturday to attend the funeral which will be held Sunday afternoon.

Stellar Golfers Invade Local Course Monday

Casey & Lawson Face All-Stars

Another feature golf tournament with professionals and amateurs of Ohio's leading clubs has been arranged for the Pickaway Country club course Monday, Frank J. Casey, local professional, announced today.

A similar tournament staged early in the season was one of the finest successes ever attempted at the club. In that tournament Mike Heaney and Jack Preston, Athens, professional and amateur, won in a play off after a four way tie resulted at the conclusion of the regulation 18 holes.

Heaney and Preston first eliminated Herb Christopher and Spot Riley, and Casey and his partner, Hayden Rector, then went to the seventh hole of the playoff with Archie Hambrick and Ken Sheridan of Zanesville, amid a steady downpour to win the contest and carry off first prize money.

ALL SATISFIED

At that time every visiting golfer was elated over the condition of the club's layout and the condition of the course. According to Casey has received a crowd just as large and including names just as prominent in the golfing world as before will be on hand for the Monday tourney.

Casey will be paired with Harry Lawson of Shelbyville, Ind., kn of the Weldon family of this city, in an effort to uphold the prestige of Pickaway club. Lawson, a former captain of the Indiana university golf team, has cracked par several times while playing here, and with Casey on his game, may find the competition tough and plenty.

PAIRING MADE FOR TOURNEY

Paul Adkins, Defending Champion, Meets C. G. Stewart in First Round Test.

Pairings for the championship golf tournament of the Pickaway Country club were announced Saturday by Frank Casey, professional, with play to begin immediately. The first round must be completed by next Sunday, Sept. 4.

Paul E. Adkins is the defending champion and in his first match will meet Dr. C. G. Stewart. Other pairings follow:

Clark Will vs. John D. Bragg. F. R. Caldwell vs. Mr. Hilliard of Laurelville.

James Evans vs. Dr. Grattidge. G. D. Phillips vs. O. W. House. Press Enderlin vs. Dewey Black. C. T. Gilmore vs. Frank Hamilton.

Mack Mader vs. N. E. Reichelderfer. Joe Noecker vs. A. W. Phillips. Charles Mason vs. Mack Parrett. Paul Johnson vs. Dr. G. D. Hittler.

R. D. Musser vs. Glen Geib. Tom Brunner vs. Lent Hanson. Karl Herrmann vs. Lemuel Weldon.

Link Mader vs. Walter Nelson. A second flight announced include the following pairings:

C. A. Weldon vs. Dr. D. V. Courtright. Dr. H. D. Jackson vs. E. W. Lutz. Charles May vs. George Weffer. Charles Mason vs. Howard Orr.

To Test Rival Brands of Grid Strategy

At last the oft-debated question as to the merits of the celebrated football system instituted by the late Knute Rockne (upper left) and that of the fox of modern pigskin strategy, Glenn S. (Pop) Warner (upper right) of Leland Stanford. The battle of the systems will be fought out before a group of grid experts at Villanova College, Pa., between August 24 and September 3, and may result in the creation of "futuristic football," the like of which has never been seen on an American gridiron. Harry Struhldreher, coach at Villanova, one of the famous "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame and a leading exponent of the Rockne system, will defend the tactics of the late grid wizard. And Dick Hanley, coach at Northwestern University, one of the most successful advocates of the Warner style of play, will provide the opposition. Two hundred football coaches from all over the country will be the spectators—the public will be barred. The idea is to create a system embodying the best that is in the Rockne and Warner creations and to teach that system at the new Villanova College under Coach Struhldreher's direction.

HOOVER'S BUSINESS CONFERENCE ENDS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Its oratorical fervor ended, the President's business conference settled down today to routine committee meetings at which plans to aid industry and stimulate employment were discussed.

Some of the several hundred captains of business and finance were enroute home after a general session at which the President declared the crisis in the long fight against adverse industrial condition was past.

Others remained, however, to perfect a nationwide organization designed to coordinate governmental and private efforts in behalf of better times.

WESTERNER NAMED Henry M. Robinson of Los Angeles, chairman of the new central banking and industrial committee formed to direct these efforts, declared he was more than satisfied with the results of the conference.

Robinson, a personal friend to the President, planned to have his headquarters in Washington. Everett Case of New York, son-in-law to Owen D. Young, and James Douglas of the treasury department were named as his assistants. Under the direction of the central committee, the twelve regional banking and industrial committees were ready to launch upon a vigorous program to stimulate trade.

Six subcommittees created at the conference sought to complete their organization work. TO AVOID CREDIT One, under leadership of Owen D. Young, tackled the problem of making credit available and useful to business.

A program for expanding the maintenance and equipment expenditures of the railroads was mapped out by another subcommittee headed by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. Funds for this purpose, with the interest payments deferred, were offered by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Plans to increase capital replacements by other industries engaged the attention of a subcommittee under the chairmanship of Henry M. Robinson. One of the more important tasks assigned at the conference, the spread of employment by shortening the hours of labor, was taken up by a subcommittee of which Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was named chairman.

Sewell L. Avery of Chicago, president of Montgomery Ward and company, headed a subcommittee devoted to the stimulation of home improvement. A temporary moratorium on the foreclosure of home mortgages held by insolvent national banks was ordered by Comptroller J. W. Pole. His action followed a request made at the conference by Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the Home Loan bank board.

BANKS OPEN OCT. 15 "The home loan banks will be functioning by October 15, Fort declared. "They will help the home owners to refinance their property."

Teagle and K. R. Kingsbury, president of the Standard Oil Co. of California, created a deep impression by their earnest pleas in behalf of the work-sharing system. "The plan is adaptable not only to factories, where it has been conspicuously successful, but to industry generally," Teagle declared. "Where it has been tried out, it has worked to the benefit of employers and employees."

"The white-collar class has suffered worse than any other class during the depression. Shorter working hours and the sharing of work to create more employment offer genuine relief to salaried workers, as well as to wage earners."

Kingsbury told of the benefits which have followed the shortening of hours and the sharing of work on the west coast, asserting that thousands of jobless persons were given employment.

BOAT RACES ON RAILROAD OFFERS STATE FAIR RATE

MARIETTA, Aug. 27.—Packed full of thrills for the 10,000 spectators who lined the banks of the historic Muskingum river, the fifth annual midwest regatta entered its second and final day here today.

The driving of Jack Maypole, 15-year-old out-board motorboat enthusiast from River Forest, Ill., and Lew Carlisle, 18, of Eastslip, N. Y., featured the first day's card. Both are amateurs.

Two professional drivers took ducks in the river when their craft overturned negotiating turns. They were Clyde Jackson, of Carthage, O., and Frank Vincent, of Tulsa, Okla.

In the opening event, Maypole's boat roared to a win after three heats in which the best time was 1:55 for the three mile distance.

Rock-bottom round-trip excursion fares from Circleville and intermediate stations to Columbus, for the Ohio State Fair, are announced today by the Norfolk and Western Railway.

The tickets will be sold on August 30 and 31 and September 1 and 2 for forenoon trains. On the return trip the tickets will be accepted on trains leaving Columbus at 6:15 p. m. and 10:10 p. m. on the same day. In addition to Circleville, the round-trip fares will be sold at Kenova, Ironton, Portsmouth, Waverly, Lucasville, Piketon and Chillicothe.

Other reduced fares to Columbus will be offered by the N. & W. on August 28, 29, 30, 31, and on September 1, 2, and 3, inclusive. The tickets will have a final return limit to September 5.

Preaching 7:45 p. m. Everybody welcome.
Let us meet together, to worship our Lord as he has ordered us to do. A church is compared by Paul to a human body, and all the members are to have a sympathetic concern for one another. This concern must have its origin in mutual love but how are the church members to promote mutual spiritual improvement? I answer: By frequently meeting and maintaining the public worship of God. By hearkening to the teachings of the Pastor, whose business it is to feed the sheep and lambs.
Prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 7:30.

The Church Invites You

SHARING THE BEST

Arthur M. Harris, formerly president of the Northern Baptist Convention says, "I go to church because I have something to share with others and because I am constantly being touched by influences that help me. The spirit of Christ spreads from life to life and the man who tries to be both solitary and a Christian is cutting himself off from happy fellowship and from opportunities to do good."

When a professing Christian ceases to go to church, it is usually the end, with him, of all real interest in religion. He has cut a vital artery of religious life. There is not and cannot be such a thing as an aloof Christian.

Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

Let us meet together, to worship our Lord as he has ordered us to do. A church is compared by Paul to a human body, and all the members are to have a sympathetic concern for one another. This concern must have its origin in mutual love but how are the church members to promote mutual spiritual improvement? I answer: By frequently meeting and maintaining the public worship of God. 1. The Plan of the Tabernacle (Exod. 25-27).
It was a rectangular structure thirty cubits long, ten cubits wide and ten cubits high. It was divided into two rooms: the Holy Place, and the Holy of Holies. These rooms were separated by the veil. The tabernacle was within a court one hundred cubits long and fifty cubits wide. Within the court, before the door of the tabernacle, was situated the brazen altar; between the altar of sacrifice and the door was the laver; inside the Holy Place the candlestick and table of shewbread; directly in front of the veil the altar of incense which was closely connected with the brazen altar in the contact of fire and blood. In the Holy of Holies was found the Ark of the Covenant, the most sacred object of the entire tabernacle.

II. The Meaning of the Tabernacle (Exod. 28-30).
The tabernacle was the symbol of God's dwelling place. The bond of union affording a medium of communication was the priesthood. The priest was the mediator between God and the people. The tabernacle typified the incarnation of God in Christ (John 1:14). The furniture of the tabernacle, beginning with the brazen altar, symbolized the spiritual history of the worshiper, making clear the sinner's method of approach unto God. The position of the brazen altar at the door of the tabernacle indicated that no one could draw nigh unto God except by way of that altar. In the question of sin must be settled before man dares approach God. The laver typifies the sanctification of the believer. Sanctification was effected by the washing at the laver, prefiguring the influences of God's Word. The candlestick with its central shaft and its extending branches indicated the unity and diversity of God's people. The candlestick also shows the purpose of the sanctification of the believer; namely, to shine for God. The table of shewbread was for a memorial unto God of his chosen people, one loaf for each tribe. The altar of incense symbolized communion with God in worship. The putting of the blood from the brazen altar on the altar of incense shows that acceptable prayer rests on the ground of the atoning work of Christ. The rending of the veil at the time of Christ's crucifixion shows that the death of Christ gives access to God. The mercy seat upon which the blood of the sin offering was sprinkled indicates that the claim of God's law had been satisfied.

III. The Offerings for the Tabernacle (Exod. 35:20-29).
1. The motive of giving (v. 21, cf. v. 5). "Whoever is of a willing heart, let him bring it, an offering of the Lord." Giving which meets God's approval must spring from the heart (II. Cor. 9:7). The offering must not only be made of a willing mind, but it must be as unto the Lord, an expression of love and godly fear.

Using Our Leisure Hours

By a careful study of young people, it has been discovered that what they do in their leisure hours largely determines their character and their best welfare is promoted by the proper use of the time that is their own.

Most of the spare time in the evening is sadly wasted and in these days of more careful budgeting of one's income, it might be a good time to budget our time as well. A gentleman who accomplishes a great deal outside of his regular work was asked how he did it. "By using the quiet of the evening" was his reply. The busiest people usually have some time to spare in the evening. So many worth while books may be read which will increase our cultural education and keep us informed as to the current problem.

Just as in industry what was once called waste product has in many cases become a source of profit, so our time now wasted may be put to constructive use. The right use of one's leisure hours can help largely in molding one's character.

The Church Invites You

SHARING THE BEST

Arthur M. Harris, formerly president of the Northern Baptist Convention says, "I go to church because I have something to share with others and because I am constantly being touched by influences that help me. The spirit of Christ spreads from life to life and the man who tries to be both solitary and a Christian is cutting himself off from happy fellowship and from opportunities to do good."

When a professing Christian ceases to go to church, it is usually the end, with him, of all real interest in religion. He has cut a vital artery of religious life. There is not and cannot be such a thing as an aloof Christian."

Each year there was a net increase, somewhat smaller than usual but gratifying in the face of the depression. There is a growing feeling that we are on the eve of a marked revival in spiritual things. The depression has taught us this, that material things can be taken from us and life at its best still go on. We can all help bring about a better day by fidelity and devotion. Life is only at its best when the soul rules supreme in all activities. None of us can afford to neglect our souls. Go to church tomorrow. Take a friend.

Stellar Golfers Invade Local Course Monday

Casey & Lawson Face All-Stars

Another feature golf tournament with professionals and amateurs of Ohio's leading clubs has been arranged for the Pickaway Country club course Monday, Frank J. Casey, local professional, announced today.

A similar tournament staged early in the season was one of the finest successes ever attempted at the club. In that tournament Mike Heaney and Jack Preston, Athens, professional and amateur, won in a play off after a four way tie resulted at the conclusion of the regulation 18 holes.

Heaney and Preston first eliminated Herb Christopher and Spot Riley, and Casey and his partner, Hayden Rector, then went to the seventh hole of the playoff with Archie Hambrick and Ken Sheridan of Zanesville, amid a steady downpour to win the contest and carry off first prize money.

ALL SATISFIED
At that time every visiting golfer was elated over the condition of the club's layout and the condition of the course. According to word Casey has received a crowd just as large and including names just as prominent in the golfing world as before will be on hand for the Monday tourney.

Casey will be paired with Harry Lawson of Shelbyville, Ind., kin of the Weldon family of this city, in an effort to uphold the prestige of Pickaway club. Lawson, a former captain of the Indiana university golf team, has cracked par several times while playing here, and with Casey on his game, may find the competition tough- and plenty.

STARS TO PLAY

Hambrick, Zanesville stylist, who has cracked several central Ohio course records this summer, is again expected to enroll and so is P. O. Hart of Columbus, who, only this week broke a long standing record on Scioto course scoring six under par figures, Francis Marzoff and Johnny Florio are again expected to play and so are Bobby Servis, Mel Carpenter and Bob Kepler, three of the best amateurs turned out in Ohio in recent years. The same influx of professionals, including the Marchi brothers, Joe Blanton and his brother, Jules, who crashed through to win one of the big tournaments of Ohio at Akron recently, Charlie Lorms, Joe Thomas, Maurie White and numerous others.

PUBLIC INVITED

Just as was the previous pro-amateur tournament this one is to be open to the public and since next week is "Open Week" at the club many persons are expected to get some pointers from the stellar professional performers then go out and try their own hands at this game.

"Pro" Casey is offering instructions at greatly reduced prices during the entire week. Meals can also be obtained at the clubhouse where Mr. Barger, the steward, will be on hand at all times.

Announcement was also made today by the club professional that the Washington C. H. golf team will not invade the local course until Sept. 7 because the Aug. 31 date conflicts with arrangements already made.

PAIRING MADE FOR TOURNEY

Paul Adkins, Defending Champion, Meets C. G. Stewart in First Round Test.

Pairings for the championship golf tournament of the Pickaway Country club were announced Saturday by Frank Casey, professional, with play to begin immediately. The first round must be completed by next Sunday, Sept. 4.

Paul E. Adkins is the defending champion and in his first match will meet Dr. C. G. Stewart.

Other pairings follow:
Clark Will vs. John D. Bragg,
F. R. Caldwell vs. Mr. Hilliard of Laurelville.

James Evans vs. Dr. Grattidge,
G. D. Phillips vs. O. W. House,
Press Enderlin vs. Dewey Black,
C. T. Gilmore vs. Frank Hamilton.

Mack Mader vs. N. E. Reichelderfer,
Joe Joecker vs. A. W. Phillips,
Don Watt vs. Howard Orr,
Paul Johnson vs. Dr. G. D. Hitle.

R. D. Musser vs. Glen Geib,
Tom Brunner vs. Lent Hanson,
Karl Herrmann vs. Lemuel Weldon.

Link Mader vs. Walter Nelson.
A second flight announced include the following pairings:

C. A. Weldon vs. Dr. D. V. Courtright,
Dr. H. D. Jackson vs. E. W. Lutz,
Charles May vs. George Weller,
Charles Mason vs. Howard Orr.

WEINERT'S WILD HEAVE COSTS GAME

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 27.—Milwaukee today held a 4 to 3 victory over the Columbus Red Birds because Pitcher Phil Weinert blew up in the ninth inning and heaved a wild pitch that allowed the Brewers to put the winning run across home plate.

The game developed into a pitcher's duel for the first eight innings, with Paul Dean on the mound for Columbus and Jack Knott hurling for Milwaukee. The score at the beginning of the ninth inning was Milwaukee 2, Columbus 1.

In the first half of the final inning, the Birds pushed two runs across to take a slim lead. When the Brewers stepped to bat, George Selkirk, Columbus fielder, muffed Gullie's long fly in deep left for a two base error. Christensen walked and Manager Billy Southworth, of Columbus, jerked Dean in favor of Weinert.

The next Brewer batter was out on a pop fly and as a pinch hitter struck over, Columbus' worries seemed over. Koshler, Brewer third baseman, smashed out a double to score the trying run and put Christensen on third.

With one ball and one strike on the next batter, Weinert let go the wild pitch which Catcher Healey couldn't have reached with a pole and Christensen slid in with the winning run.

Christensen, a former Columbus player, also drove in another run with a homer, and had scored once before the ninth.

Human nature is especially hard to understand when you see the husband of a jealous wife.

To Test Rival Brands of Grid Strategy

At last the oft-debated question as to the merits of the celebrated football system instituted by the late Knute Rockne (upper left) and that of the fox of modern pigskin strategy, Glenn S. (Pop) Warner (upper right) of Leland Stanford. The battle of the systems will be fought out before a group of grid experts at Villanova College, Pa., between August 24 and September 3, and may result in the creation of "futuristic football," the like of which has never been seen on an American gridiron. Harry Stuhlreher, coach at Villanova, one of the famous "Four Horsemen" of Notre Dame and a leading exponent of the Rockne system, will defend the tactics of the late grid wizard. And Dick Hanley, coach at Northwestern University, one of the most successful advocates of the Warner style of play, will provide the opposition. Two hundred football coaches from all over the country will be the spectators—the public will be barred. The idea is to create a system embodying the best that is in the Rockne and Warner creations and to teach that system at the new Villanova College under Coach Stuhlreher's direction.

HOOVER'S BUSINESS CONFERENCE ENDS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Its oratorical fervor ended, the President's business conference settled down today to routine committee meetings at which plans to aid industry and stimulate employment were discussed.

Some of the several hundred captains of business and finance were enroute home after a general session at which the President declared the crisis in the long fight against adverse industrial condition was past.

Others remained, however, to perfect a nationwide organization designed to coordinate governmental and private efforts in behalf of better times.

WESTERNER NAMED

Henry M. Robinson of Los Angeles, chairman of the new central banking and industrial committee formed to direct these efforts, declared he was more than satisfied with the results of the conference.

Robinson, a personal friend to the President, planned to have his headquarters in Washington. Everett Case of New York, son-in-law to Owen D. Young, and James Douglas of the treasury department were named as his assistants.

Under the direction of the central committee, the twelve regional banking and industrial committees were ready to launch upon a vigorous program to stimulate trade. Six subcommittees created at the conference sought to complete their organization work.

TO AVAIL CREDIT

One, under leadership of Owen D. Young, tackled the problem of making credit available and useful to business.

A program for expanding the maintenance and equipment expenditures of the railroads was mapped out by another subcommittee headed by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. Funds for this purpose, with the interest payments deferred, were offered by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Plans to increase capital replacements by other industries engaged the attention of a subcommittee under the chairmanship of Henry M. Robinson.

One of the more important tasks assigned at the conference, the spread of employment by shortening the hours of labor, was taken up by a subcommittee of which Walter C. Teague, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was named chairman.

Sewell L. Avery of Chicago, president of Montgomery Ward and company, headed a subcommittee devoted to the stimulation of home improvement.

A temporary moratorium on the foreclosure of home mortgages held by insolvent national banks was ordered by Comptroller J. W. Pole. His action followed a request made at the conference by Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the Home Loan bank board.

BANKS OPEN OCT. 15

"The home loan banks will be functioning by October 15, Fort declared. "They will help the home owners to refinance their property."

Teague and K. R. Kingsbury, president of the Standard Oil Co. of California, created a deep impression by their earnest pleas in behalf of the work-sharing system.

"The plan is adaptable not only to factories, where it has been conspicuously successful, but to industry generally," Teague declared. "Where it has been tried out it has worked to the benefit of employers and employees."

"The white-collar class has suffered worse than any other class during the depression. Shorter working hours and the sharing of work to create more employment offer genuine relief to salaried workers, as well as to wage earners."

Kingsbury told of the benefits which have followed the shortening of hours and the sharing of work on the west coast, asserting that thousands of jobless persons were given employment.

ARCHITECT ENDS DISPUTE

PHILADELPHIA.—The conflict which has waged for many years over the age of Independence Hall apparently has been settled with the announcement of Horace Wells Selers, Philadelphia architect, that the foundations were laid in 1732, the year of George Washington's birth.

CUBS ALMOST SURE BET TO ANNEX TITLE

Warnecke Leads Grimm-men To 10-4 Victory Over Slipping Dodgers.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—The once formidable Brooklyn Dodgers pulled into St. Louis today looking like they had ridden across the continent in a rumble seat.

Reeling from three crushing defeats by the Cubs, their pitching staff shot to pieces, and 6 1-2 games behind Chicago in the National league pennant race, the Dodgers looked well to stay in front of the Pirates, only half a game behind them.

Yesterday's debacle in Chicago recalled the dramatic game of the 1929 world series when the A's scored ten runs against the Cubs in one inning. In the third inning yesterday, the Bruins knocked Hollis Thurston and Dazzy Vance out of the box scored nine runs on eight hits, Mark Koenig getting two blows during the big rally.

WARNECKE WINNER

Lon Warnecke, Chicago's young pitching star, chalked up his 19th victory and drove in his team's first two runs with a double. The final score was 10 to 4 and the victory practically assured the Cubs of the pennant.

Dizzy Dean of the Cardinals, the National league strike-out king, fanned five batters and yielded five hits in beating the Giants, 4 to 2, for the second time in three days.

After seven straight defeats by the Phillies, the Pirates finally beat the Quakers 8 to 0 behind Chagnon's gilt-edged pitching.

Jimmy Foxx needs only thirteen more homers to tie Babe Ruth's home run record. Foxx poked No. 47 yesterday while the Babe hit his 37th.

Al Simmons and Lefty Grove also hit homers as the Athletics shaded the Browns, 5 to 4. A single by Simmons sent the winning run across in the ninth.

ALLEN AGAIN

Ruth's homer and Gehrig's 29th helped young Johnny Allen gain a 4 to 2 decision over Cleveland for his eighth straight triumph and his third victory in a week's time. The White Sox outbatted the Red Sox by eighteen hits to thirteen.

Berry and Seeds getting four blows apiece, but fourteen bases on balls by Chicago's pitchers were costly and Boston won 11 to 8.

Other teams were idle.

As a rule, courtesy is just a business of pretending that the other fellow is more important than yourself.

BOAT RACES ON

MARIETTA, Aug. 27.—Packed full of thrills for the 10,000 spectators who lined the banks of the historic Muskingum river, the fifth annual midwest regatta entered its second and final day here today.

The driving of Jack Maypole, 15-year-old out-board motorboat enthusiast from River Forest, Ill., and Lew Carlisle, 18, of Eastslip, N. Y., featured the first day's card. Both are amateurs.

Two professional drivers took ducks in the river when their craft overturned negotiating turns. They were Clyde Jackson, of Carthage, O., and Frank Vincent, of Tulsa, Okla.

In the opening event, Maypole's boat roared to a win after three heats in which the best time was 4:55 for the three mile distance.

RAILROAD OFFERS STATE FAIR RATE

Rock-bottom round-trip excursion fares from Circleville and intermediate stations to Columbus, for the Ohio State Fair, are announced today by the Norfolk and Western Railway.

The tickets will be sold on August 30 and 31 and September 1 and 2 for forenoon trains. On the return trip the tickets will be accepted on trains leaving Columbus at 6:15 p. m. and 10:10 p. m. on the same day. In addition to Circleville, the round-trip fares will be sold at Kenova, Ironton, Portsmouth, Waverly, Lucasville, Pike-ton and Chillicothe.

Other reduced fares to Columbus will be offered by the N. & W. on August 28, 29, 30, 31, and on September 1, 2, and 3, inclusive. The tickets will have a final return limit to September 5.

G. O. P. LEADER IN WEST DIES

Senator Waterman of Colorado, Passes Away in Washington Hotel.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Senator Charles W. Waterman, Republican, senior senator from Colorado, died today at his Washington home, Wardman Park hotel.

Senator Waterman has been in failing health for some time, and for that reason declined to make the race this year for re-election.

Waterman, a Vermont native, had made his home in Denver since 1889. He received the degree of LL.D. in 1922. After graduation he taught school for three years in Connecticut and Iowa. He then took a law course at the University of Michigan, graduating in 1889. He moved immediately to Denver, and practiced law there continuously until his retirement recently.

Waterman was elected to the Senate in 1926, receiving a majority over five other candidates.

He married Anna R. Cook, of Burlington, Vermont.

Funeral arrangements have not been made. As Congress is in recess, Edwin P. Thayer, secretary of the senate, will appoint an official delegation of senators and representatives to escort the body home.

Upwards of 200,000 persons are expected to attend the Segretrally, according to word received by the Governor. It is similar to one staged by the Democracy of New Jersey in 1928 for Smith.

Forty five trains have been chartered out of Jersey City, Special amplifying arrangements will carry Governor Roosevelt's voice nearly one mile from the speaker's stand. The Governor's address will be broadcast by WOR.

Governor A. Harry Moore of New Jersey will entertain Governor Roosevelt at luncheon and will introduce him. Roosevelt's speech is set for 3 p. m.

The Governor was scheduled to leave his home here at 10:30 a. m. by motor for Segretr. He will be met at Deal, N. J., by Mayor Hague and other Jersey leaders and escorted to Segretr.

5 INDENDIARISTS SENTENCED TO DIE

MOSCOW, Aug. 27.—Five men, including two former noblemen, were sentenced to death today for incendiarism.

The two former noblemen, Dumbrowski and Drabishewski, burned a building in white Russia, while the others set fire to state peat-fields near Moscow.

Tomorrow's Americans

TEN years from now the children who go trooping back to the schools in a few weeks may have the destinies of America in their hands and its burden upon their shoulders. They may be, in some sudden and terrific crisis of events as yet unforeseen, the balance of political power in the modern world. Difficulties of a sort never contemplated by Americans a generation ago, and certainly not predicted in textbooks, will confront them. In the end the ultimate test of fitness to survive is applied not through a nation's pocketbook or its skyscrapers or its railway lines or even its military resources but through the fiber of its collective spirit. By what they understood and felt and desired rather than by what they possessed, great civilizations of the past rose or fell. What the America of the future will know and feel and desire are being determined in the schools today.

The educational system of the country, therefore, has a man's size task to contend with. Sometimes it seems necessary to wonder whether it is equal to what it has to do. A great many people are coming to feel that the public schools and the colleges are alike too ready to teach worship of material success alone. Other superficial and quite unrelated to the unescapable and pressing realities of politics, business, international affairs or everyday life itself.

Certainly the old and pleasant legends and the old romantic delusions of our untrodden past seem largely to dominate the thinking of the schools and to obscure a good many unpleasant truths with which the country must deal realistically now and in the future.

You hear little in modern classrooms of the hidden causes of wars, of the actualities of the struggle for economic survival or triumph, of the unpleasant facts of contemporary politics or of the meaning of social cross-currents now felt but not understood in many parts of the world. The schools for their part are up against the habitual unwillingness of people to face unhappy truths. Even the children nowadays demand to be amused rather than enlightened. Life in America is much easier for everybody than it used to be.

There is no great general incentive to set generation after generation to toiling for knowledge. There is instead a great tendency to coddle and flatter the young in every sort of school, and there are times when every road that leads to knowledge seems barricaded by faddish and hampering devices of the one sort or another. High schools, for example, must be glorious in architecture and spacious and generally reminiscent of the legendary romanticism of college life. Even in the junior grades the public school children exhibit a strong tendency to ape the manners of the universities when instead they should be learning to spell.

Of all the words that make girls glad, the pick are these: "Charge it to Dad."

Eclipse

METEOROLOGICALLY this has been a summer to be remembered. There have been many clear nights for star-gazing, a large number of interesting constellations on view, a thrilling shower of meteors and for a season closer a real headliner, a total eclipse of the sun scheduled for August 31.

The big show will be the eclipse. Universities and scientific bodies have pre-empted hilltops in Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine for their scientific observations. Thousands of amateur astronomers will hover around the professionals as well as automobiles will line the path of the moon's shadow with the curious. Whereas our ancestors fled from the shadow in terror this generation will spend time and money and effort to witness the phenomenon.

More will happen than the mere blotting out of the sun's light for a minute. Jupiter and some of the fixed planets will be visible. Bailey's Beads, the moon's mountain peaks, will stand out clearly. The temperature will drop suddenly and the direction of the wind may change.

It will be a good show if the weather is good. Neither rain nor fog can halt an eclipse but even a haze can rob man of the thrill of witnessing it. Only good picnic weather will be acceptable. Any other kind will cause a lot of well laid plans to go awry.

Spain's Americanization is complete. She is building 20,000 new schools on borrowed money.

"MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY"

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY COWICI-FRIEDE INC., DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

At 11:30 on New Year's Eve, Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Mayfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Dougherty. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe, known as "The Night-Club Lady," widow of Gaylord Gifford, the cotton millionaire is the "higher-up" responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffled the police. Though her husband died practically penniless, Lola lives in luxury. She arrives at the Mayfair accompanied by Vincent Rowland, an attorney. At Lola's urgent request, Colt joins her party. She voices the fear that she will not leave Mayfair alive.

CHAPTER FOUR

"WHAT Miss Carewe says is not an exaggeration," declared old Rowland, with smooth authority. "I consider that she is in urgent need of police advice and protection."

Out of the pause that followed, came Colt's voice, clear, masculine and precise:

"Why do you think you will be killed?"

"I have been warned of what will happen to me!"

"Personally?"

"The warning was clear enough—or me!"

Colt looked at her, for the first time showing the slightest interest.

"A practical joke?" he suggested. She looked at him searchingly.

"Mr. Colt, would you consider it a practical joke, if you had a dog that you had loved for years, and someone killed him?"

Colt's cigarette burned neglected between his fingers.

"That was done to my dog a week ago," Lola rushed on.

Into the gaze of Thatcher Colt had leaped a gleam of resentment—the chief was not a dog-lover, but any wanton killing stirred his resentment.

"That sounds—far-fetched!" he protested. "Where was your dog killed—in your apartment?"

"On the terrace, outside my bedroom window."

"And at what hour?"

"Late at night, while we were all asleep—my maid, my mother, and Christine Quires, a girl friend who is stopping with me."

"How was he killed?" asked Colt.

"I don't know. We just found him dead!"

Was this all that had alarmed the beauty? Yet there was no mistaking the fear that possessed Lola Carewe.

"Has anything else happened to alarm you?" asked Colt politely.

Lola shivered.

"Yesterday," she disclosed, "my pet parrot, Pandi Boo, given to me by my late husband, also died."

"How?"

"I don't know."

"Wasn't it poisoned?"

"That's the queer part. Of course I thought so. But I sent the poor thing to an animal hospital. They could find no trace of any poison at all."

Colt nodded thoughtfully.

"Still, isn't it probably only a coincidence?" he suggested.

"Not after what happened to-night."

"Just listen to this, Mr. Colt," urged Vincent Rowland, as he leaned forward. All eyes were now on Lola.

"Only an hour ago, I found a letter in the mail box in the lobby of my apartment house, as I came downstairs with Mr. Rowland. You see, Mr. Colt, we had not intended coming to Mayfair tonight. We were bound for the Lion's Paw, the new club out near Rockville Center.

But as soon as we read this note, I felt I must get to you about it. We telephoned your office, then your home—your butler told me you would be here. Vincent, show Mr. Colt that letter."

The aged lawyer gravely produced a plain white envelope, from which the Commissioner drew a single sheet of ruled note paper.

The message was written in cheap brownish ink, the awkward block letters apparently formed with painful care, and read:

"We have already killed the only two creatures that you ever had any real love for. Now we come to you. You are going to die before three o'clock. No human being can save you."

There was no signature. Colt carefully folded the paper and passed it to me.

"If someone meant to take your life, why warn you about it?" he objected, frowning. "The act of sending such a warning should be a psychological clue to the writer's identity."

The waiter brought the dishes of their order. Lola Carewe toyed with her fork, then lifted it, about to taste a curry of lamb and rice.

Colt's voice, casual, indifferent, stayed her:

"I would not eat that if I really felt—"

"Of course," she murmured. "What a silly fool I would be to touch anything now."

"Ah, my dear Colt, then you do take this threat seriously," exclaimed Vincent Rowland with deep satisfaction.

"Miss Carewe's life may be in danger," granted Colt, tamping out his cigarette. "At least, I think she should be well-guarded tonight. I shall be glad to put some of our picked men at her disposal."

A little cry came from Lola Carewe and a grunt of disappointment from Rowland. Dougherty was staring meaningfully at the Commissioner.

"Miss Carewe had hoped for your personal handling of this case," essayed the elderly attorney. "And so, in fact, did I. It would be a great favor to me—"

"I feel that only you can save my life, Mr. Colt," shuddered Lola, her white fingers quivering as they toyed with her ruby. "No one else—I am really terrified."

"Thatcher," cried Dougherty, "we can't pass this up. It's natural—you understand."

Colt nodded slowly.

"Very well," he yielded. "I shall be glad to supervise your protection by the Police Department, if you think you need that. But only on my own terms."

"Anything?" cried Lola.

"And what are your terms?" from Vincent Rowland.

"That you, Miss Carewe, place yourself and your household entirely in my hands. We must go to your home at once—and you must answer all my questions."

"Willingly," Lola Carewe agreed, with a docile, child-like gaze.

"There must be no deviation of any kind from police orders!" emphasized Colt.

"You shall be the boss," she promised, laughing with an effort at lightness.

Poor Lola! If she had only kept that promise!

Five minutes later I was talking to Headquarters from a telephone booth under the staircase outside the Crystal Room. At the other end of the wire was Inspector Flynn, I was transmitting Colt's orders.

"The chief wants detectives and one woman operative sent at once to the apartment house at Number 700 East Fifty-eighth Street. Tell them to meet us in the hallway on the twenty-second floor. Fix it with the apartment house manager. And the chief says to step on it."

"O and also K," growled Inspector Flynn as he hung up.

Emerging from the telephone booth, I found Detective H. H. Harris, of the Fifth Avenue Squad, waiting for us. Harris was assigned to Mayfair every Saturday night.

He was a first-grade detective, promoted as are all the New York detectives from the uniformed ranks—a dark-haired man with a soulful expression, whose popularity with the opposite sex gained the Police Department many valuable tips. Colt had directed Harris to assist me.

"Everything set," Harris told me. "The Commissioner's car is now in front of the Forty-sixth Street entrance. Three motorcycle patrolmen are standing by. Would you mind telling me what all this is about?"

I pretended not to hear him as I reclaimed hat, stick, and overcoat and led the way up the red-carpeted stairs. Through the glass of the revolving doors, I saw the chief's car, and the round, moon-like face of the chauffeur, Neil McMahon, impassive as a Buddha above the steering wheel. The air was filled with whirling snowflakes, and the wind made a harsh sound. I was suddenly overpowered by a sense of unreality. This New Year's Eve adventure seemed remote, bizarre, incredible. The three patrolmen were huddled together like blue night-birds in the storm. The shields on their breasts gleamed brightly. One of them coughed. These men, Colt's car, the storm—all were real—but Lola Carewe's death-threat . . .

When our party left the Ritz Carlton Hotel that night, Lola was under strict and adequate police guard. Quickly she entered the Commissioner's car, and sat in the middle of the rear seat. Colt rode at her left, and I at her right.

Dougherty and Rowland occupied the folding seats in front of us, and Detective Harris sat beside the chauffeur in front. At a word from Colt, we started off at break-neck speed through the slithering ice of the winter streets, followed by three chugging motorcycles.

"The glass of these windows is bullet-proof," Dougherty explained. For no apparent reason, Vincent Rowland laughed softly.

"Am I to take it that we are now impregnable from attack?" he queried.

The District Attorney did not reply. The car stopped before the marquee of an apartment house, a thin, tall tower on the brink of the East River. Except for the three uniformed motorcycle officers, the sidewalk seemed deserted. Shivering in the dismal cold, we hurried into the lobby. With an unnatural sense of apprehension, I looked around me. So definite and so defiant had been the threat against this woman's life and Thatcher Colt had taken it so seriously, that I was prepared to see an assassin in every dark corner.

Arthritis Pains Disappear as if by Magic When Infection Is Removed

One of Mankind's Oldest and Most Painful Diseases, Long Thought Incurable, in Many Cases Is Relieved Almost Miraculously by Treating the Teeth or the Tonsils.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ARTHRITIS, one of the oldest diseases known to mankind, has been regarded as incurable. It is still believed by many to be incurable, but when the disease is properly treated, complete cure and relief can be obtained in most cases.

Persistent inflammation involving the joints of the body is usually spoken of as arthritis. There are various forms, and in each certain changes take place in the affected joint. These may involve the lining of the joint, the bones of the joint or the structure around the joint.

The disease is usually met between the ages of twenty and forty. It may come on suddenly, but in most cases is slow in its progress.

Focal Infections
The most common cause of arthritis is some sort of infection of the joints. This may come from what is called a "focal infection," which may exist anywhere in the body.

By focal infection is meant a localized infection, and this may be in the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, gall bladder, intestine or some other point quite distant from the afflicted and painful joint.

Most cases of arthritis are successfully treated when the focal infection is located and removed; and by means of the X-ray it is now possible in most instances to determine accurately the presence or absence of focal infection.

Only within recent years has arthritis been successfully treated. Individuals now suffering from arthritis may obtain relief from their affliction by subjecting themselves to a complete and thorough examination. All sources of infection and disorders of the intestinal tract and digestive systems must be corrected before cure can be expected.

Do not become discouraged if you do not obtain immediate relief, for prolonged and careful treatment is necessary in some cases.

Bloodbuilding Foods
Improper food, failure to eat fresh fruits and vegetables or lack of exercise, sunshine and fresh air must be considered as additional causes of arthritis. After the focus of infection has been removed, bloodbuilding foods should be included in the diet. For this purpose liver is recommended, daily or at least every other day. The diet should be simple, nutritious and easily digested, and should contain vitamins, mineral salts and liberal amounts of protein.

 terial success alone. Other superficial and quite unrelated to the unescapable and pressing realities of politics, business, international affairs or everyday life itself.

Certainly the old and pleasant legends and the old romantic de-lusions of our untroubled past seem largely to dominate the thinking of the schools and to obscure a good many unpleasant truths with which the country must deal realistic now and in the future.
 You hear little in modern classrooms of the hidden causes of wars, of the actualities of the struggle for economic survival or triumph, of the unpleasant facts of contemporary politics or of the meaning of social cross-currents now felt but not understood in many parts of the world. The schools for their part are up against the habitual unwillingness of people to face unhappy truths.
 Even the children nowadays demand to be amused rather than enlightened. Life in America is much easier for everybody than it used to be.

There is no great general incentive to this generation after generation to toiling for knowledge. There is instead a great tendency to coddle and flatter the young in every sort of school, and there are times when every road that leads to knowledge seems harricaded by faddish and hampering devices of the one sort or another.
 High schools, for example, must be glorious in architecture and spacious and generally reminiscent of the legendary romanticism of college life. Even in the junior grades the public school children exhibit a strong tendency to ape
 the manners of the universities when instead they should be learning to spell.

On all the words that make girls glad, the pick are these:
 "Charge it to Dad."

Eclipse

METEOROLOGICALLY this has been a summer to be remembered. There have been many clear nights for star-gazing, a large number of interesting constellations on view, a thrilling shower of meteors and for a season closer a real headliner, a total eclipse of the sun scheduled for August 31.

The big show will be the eclipse.
 Universities and scientific bodies have pre-empted hilltops in Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine for their scientific observations.
 Thousands of amateur astronomers will hover around the professionals. And bus and railroad excursions as well as automobiles will line the path of the moon's shadow with the curious. Whereas our ancestors fled from the shadow in terror this generation will spend time and money and effort to witness the phenomenon.

More will happen than the mere blotting out of the sun's light for a minute. Jupiter and some of the fixed planets will be visible. Bailley's Beads, the moon's mountain peaks, will stand out clearly. The temperature will drop suddenly and the direction of the wind may change.

It will be a good show if the weather is good. Neither rain nor fog can halt an eclipse but even a haze can rob man of the thrill of witnessing it. Only good picnic weather will cause a lot of well-wishers to go awry.

Spain's Americanization is coming. She is utilizing 20,000 new roads on borrowed money.

MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY
 BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY COWLEY-FRIEDLE INC. DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

At 11:30 on New Year's Eve, Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Mayfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Dougherty. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe, known as "The Night-Club Lady," widow of Gaylord Gifford, the cotton millionaire is the "higher-up" responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffle the police. Though her husband died practically penniless, Lola lives in luxury. She arrives at the Mayfair, accompanied by Vincent Rowland, an attorney. At Lola's urgent request, Colt joins her party. She voices the fear that she will not leave Mayfair alive.

CHAPTER FOUR

"WHAT Miss Carewe says is not an exaggeration," declared old Rowland, with smooth authority. "I consider that he is in urgent need of police advice and protection."

Out of the pause that followed, came Colt's voice, clear, masculine and precise: "Why do you think you will be killed?"

"I have been warned of what will happen to me!"

"Personally?"

"The warning was clear enough—or me!"

Colt looked at her, for the first time showing the slightest interest. "A practical joke?" he suggested. She looked at him searchingly.

"Mr. Colt, would you consider it a practical joke, if you had a dog that you had loved for years, and someone killed him?"

Colt's cigarette burned neglected between his fingers.

"That was done to my dog a week ago," Lola rushed on.

Into the gaze of Thatcher Colt had leaped a gleam of resentment—the chief was not a dog-lover, but any wanton killing stirred his resentment.

"That sounds—far-fetched!" he protested. "Where was your dog killed—in your apartment?"

"On the terrace, outside my bedroom window."

"And at what hour?"

"Late at night, while we were all asleep. My maid, my mother, and Christine Quirke, a girl friend who is stopping with me."

"How was he killed?" asked Colt.

"I don't know. We just found him dead!"

Was this all that had alarmed the beauty? Yet there was no mistaking the fear that possessed Lola Carewe.

"Has anything else happened to alarm you?" asked Colt politely.

Lola shivered.

"Yesterday," she disclosed, "my pet parrot, Pandey Boo, given to me by my late husband, also died."

"How?"

"I don't know."

"Wasn't it poisoned?"

"That's the queer part. Of course I thought so. But I sent the poor thing to an animal hospital. They could find no trace of any poison at all."

Colt nodded thoughtfully.

"Still, isn't it probably only a coincidence?" he suggested.

"Not after what happened to-night."

"Just listen to this, Mr. Colt," urged Vincent Rowland, as he leaned forward. All eyes were now on Lola.

"Only an hour ago, I found a letter in the mail box in the lobby of my apartment house, as I came downstairs with Mr. Rowland. You see, Mr. Colt, we had not intended coming to Mayfair tonight. We were bound for the Lion's Paw, the new club out near Rockville Center. But as soon as we read this note, I felt I must get to you about it. We telephoned your office, then your home—your butler told you would be here. Vincent, show Mr. Colt that letter."

The aged lawyer gravely produced a plain white envelope, from which the Commissioner drew a single sheet of ruled note paper. The message was written in cheap brownish ink, the awkward block letters apparently formed with painful care, and read:

"We have already killed the only two creatures that you ever had any real love for. Now we come to you. You are going to die before three o'clock. No human being can save you."

There was no signature. Colt carefully folded the paper and passed it to me.

"If someone meant to take your life, why warn you about it?" he objected, frowning. "The act of sending such a warning should be a psychological clue to the writer's identity."

The waiter brought the dishes of their order. Lola Carewe toyed with her fork, then lifted it, about to taste a curry of lamb and rice. Colt's voice, casual, indifferent, stayed her:

"I would not eat that if I really felt—"

"Of course," she murmured. "What a silly fool I would be to touch anything now."

"Ah, my dear Colt, then you do take this threat seriously," exclaimed Vincent Rowland with deep satisfaction.

"Miss Carewe's life may be in danger," granted Colt, tamping out his cigarette. "At least, I think she should be well-guarded tonight. I shall be glad to put some of our picked men at her disposal."

A little cry came from Lola Carewe and a grunt of disappointment from Rowland. Dougherty was staring meaningfully at the Commissioner.

"Miss Carewe had hoped for her personal handling of this case," essayed the elderly attorney. "And so, in fact, did I. It would be a great favor to me."

"I feel that only you can save my life, Mr. Colt," shuddered Lola, her white fingers quivering as they toyed with her ruby. "No one else—I am really terrified."

"Thatcher," cried Dougherty, "we can't pass this up. It's natural—you understand."

Colt nodded slowly.

"Very well," he yielded. "I shall be glad to supervise your protection by the Police Department, if you think you need that. But only on my own terms."

"Anything?" cried Lola.

"And what are your terms?"

"That you, Miss Carewe, place yourself and your household entirely in my hands. We must go to your home at once—and you must answer all my questions."

"Willingly," Lola Carewe agreed, with a docile, child-like gaze.

"There must be no deviation of any kind from police orders!" emphasized Colt.

"You shall be the boss," she promised, laughing with an effort at lightness.

Poor Lola! If she had only kept that promise!

Five minutes later I was talking to Headquarters from a telephone booth under the staircase outside the Crystal Room. At the other end of the wire was Inspector Flynn. I was transmitting Colt's orders.

"The chief wants detectives and one woman operative sent at once to the apartment house at Number 700 East Fifty-eighth Street. Tell them to meet us in the hallway on the twenty-second floor. Fix it with the apartment house manager. And the chief says to step on it."

"O and also K," growled Inspector Flynn as he hung up.

Emerging from the telephone booth, I found Detective H. H. Harris, of the Fifth Avenue Squad, waiting for us. Harris was assigned to Mayfair every Saturday night. He was a first-grade detective, protective as all the New York detectives from the uniformed ranks—a dark-haired man with a soulful expression, whose popularity with the opposite sex gained the Police Department many valuable tips. Colt had directed Harris to assist me.

"Everything set," Harris told me. "The Commissioner's car is now in front of the Forty-sixth Street entrance. Three motorcycle patrolmen are standing by. Would you mind telling me what all this is about?"

I pretended not to hear him as I reclaimed hat, stick, and overcoat and led the way up the red-carpeted stairs. Through the glass of the revolving doors, I saw the chauffeur, the round, moon-like face of the chauffeur, Neil McMahon, impassive as a Buddha above the steering wheel. The air was filled with whirling snowflakes, and the wind made a harsh sound. I was suddenly overpowered by a sense of unreality. This New Year's Eve adventure seemed remote, bizarre, incredible. The three patrolmen were huddled together like blue night-birds in the storm. The shields on their breasts gleamed brightly. One of them coughed. These men, Colt's car, the storm—all were real—but Lola Carewe's death-threat

When our party left the Ritz Carlton Hotel that night, Lola was under strict and adequate police guard. Quickly she entered the Commissioner's car, and sat in the middle of the rear seat. Colt rode at her left, and I at her right. Dougherty and Rowland occupied the folding seats in front of us, and Detective Harris sat beside the chauffeur in front. At a word from Colt, we started off at break-neck speed through the slithering ice of the winter streets, followed by three chugging motorcycles.

"The glass of these windows is bullet-proof," Dougherty explained. "For no apparent reason, Vincent Rowland laughed softly."

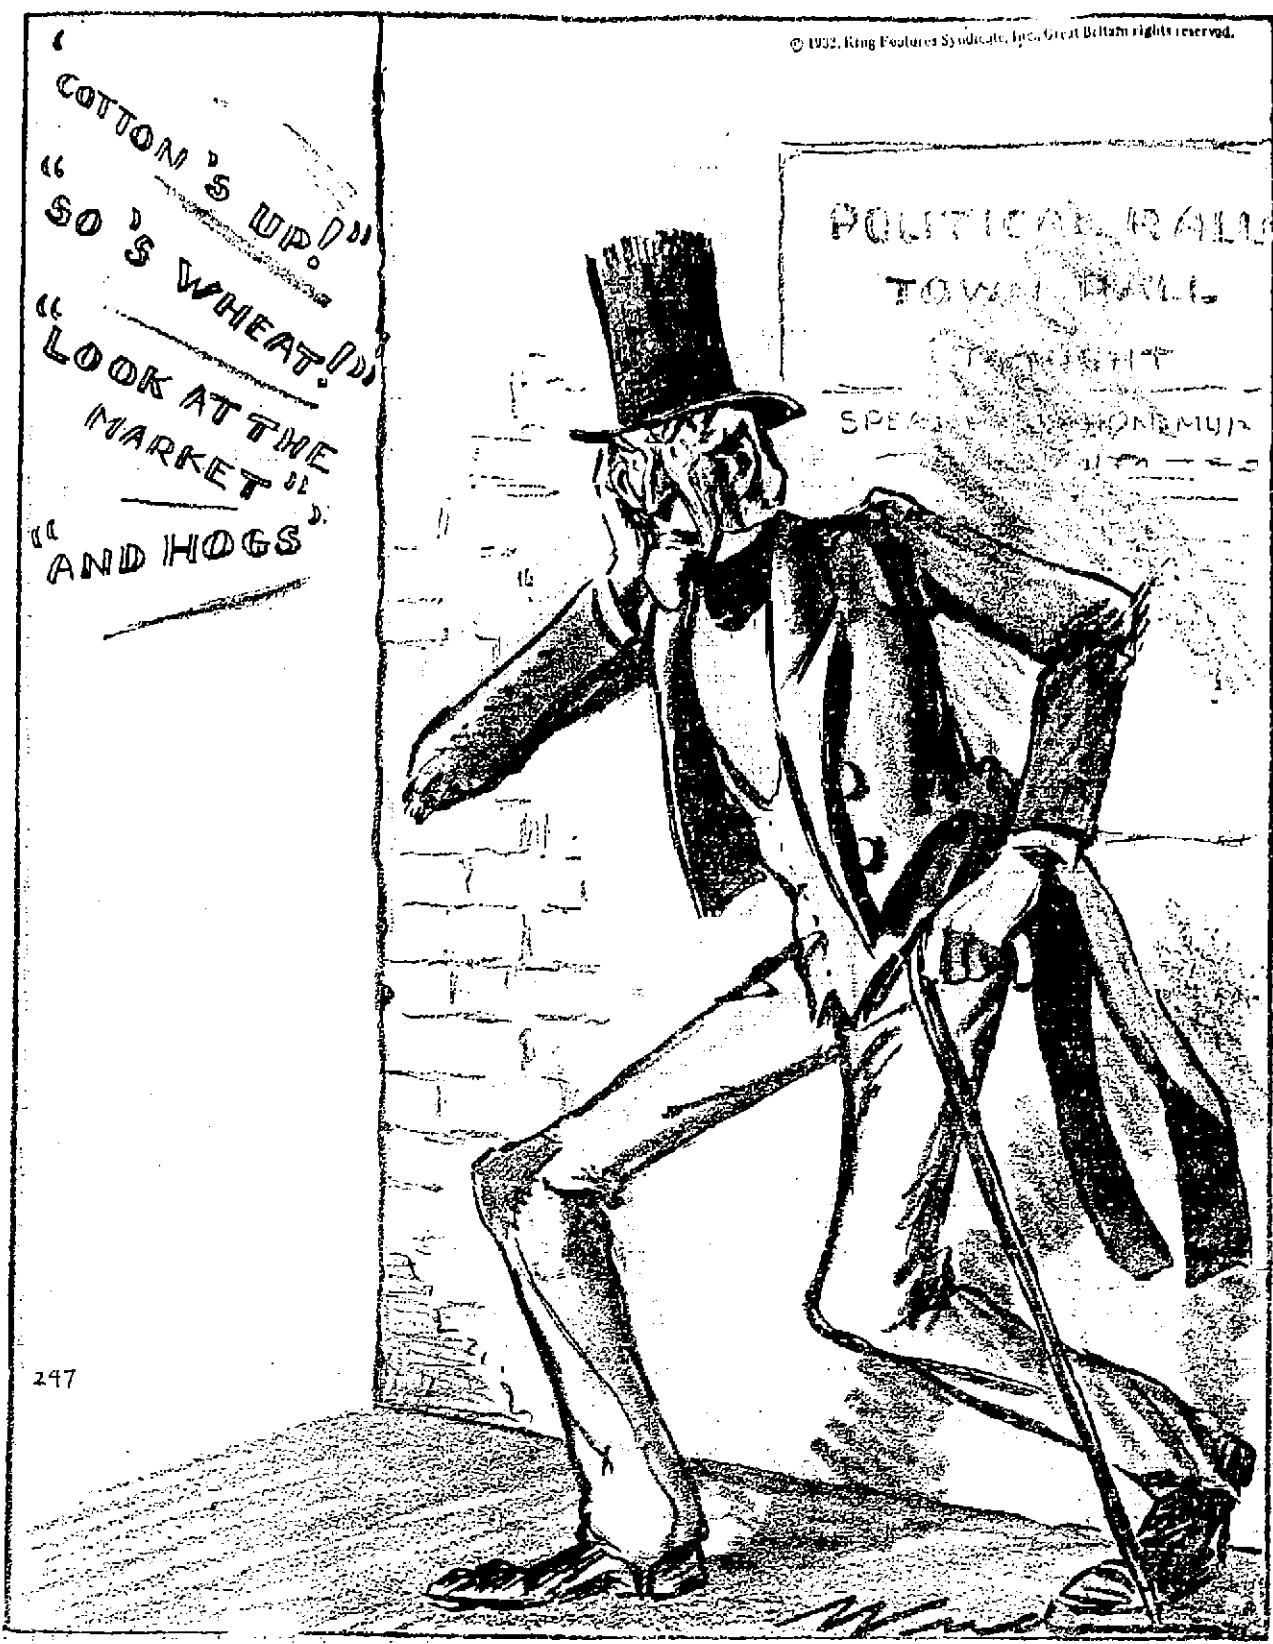

"Am I to take it that we are now impregnable from attack?" he queried.

The District Attorney did not reply. The car stopped before the marquee of an apartment house, a thin, tall tower on the brink of the East River. Except for the three uniformed motorcycle officers, the sidewalk seemed deserted. Shivering in the dismal cold, we hurried into the lobby. With an unnatural sense of apprehension, I looked around me. So definite and so defiant had been the threat against this woman's life and Thatcher Colt had taken it so seriously, that I was prepared to see an assassin in every dark corner.

He Can't Believe His Ears!

Arthritis Pains Disappear as if by Magic When Infection Is Removed

One of Mankind's Oldest and Most Painful Diseases, Long Thought Incurable, in Many Cases Is Relieved Almost Miraculously by Treating the Teeth or the Tonsils.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
 United States Senator from New York.
 Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

ARTHRITIS, one of the oldest diseases known to mankind, has been regarded as incurable. It is still believed by many to be incurable, but when the disease is properly treated complete cure and relief can be obtained in most cases.

Persistent inflammation involving the joints of the body is usually spoken of as arthritis. There are various forms, and in each certain changes take place in the affected joint. These may involve the lining of the joint, the bones of the joint or the structure around the joint.

The disease is usually met between the ages of twenty and forty. It may come on suddenly, but in most cases is slow in its progress.

Bloodbuilding Foods

Improper food, failure to eat fresh fruits and vegetables or lack of exercise, sunshine and fresh air must be considered as additional causes of arthritis. After the focus of infection has been removed, bloodbuilding foods should be included in the diet. For this purpose liver is the best. For this reason it is recommended, daily or at least every other day. The diet should be simple, nutritious and easily digested, and should contain vitamins, mineral salts and liberal amounts of protein.

Only within recent years has arthritis been successfully treated. Individuals now suffering from arthritis may obtain relief from their affliction by subjecting themselves to a complete and thorough examination. All sources of infection and disorders of the intestinal tract and digestive systems must be corrected before cure can be expected.

Do not become discouraged if you do not obtain immediate relief, for prolonged and careful treatment is necessary in some cases.

Answers to Health Queries

- Miss A. E. M. Q.—What causes a throat irritation and clearing the throat often?
 A.—This may be due to nasal catarrh. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

MOVIE

AT THE CLIFTONA
 How would you like to see a hungry man-eating tiger battle to the death with a twenty-five foot bone-crushing python?
 How would you like to see this same embattled tiger step into a pool to slake his thirst and come face to face with the jaws of a sixteen-foot crocodile just waiting for tiger meat?
 How would you like to see the meanest of jungle beasts... the wily black panther... tackle the jungle's most ferocious man-eating tiger?
 How would you like to see what happens when the crocodile gets himself wrapped in the coils of a twenty-five foot python?
 How would you like to see a lone white man in the heart of the tropic jungle entrap this snake, with his bare hands... and alive?
 These are some of the superior thrills in the Van Beuren Corporation's feature film, "Bring 'Em Back Alive," the authentic camera record of Frank Buck's famous book of the same name.
 The picture is at the Cliftona Sunday.

G.O.P. LEADER IN WEST DIES

Senator Waterman of Colorado, Passes Away in Washington Hotel.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Senator Charles W. Waterman, Republican, senior senator from Colorado, died today at his Washington home, Wardman Park hotel.

Senator Waterman has been in failing health for some time, and for that reason declined to make the race this year for re-election.

Waterman, a Vermontor by birth, had made his home in Denver since 1889. He received the degree of LL.D. in 1922. After graduation he taught school for three years in Connecticut and Iowa. He then took a law course at the University of Michigan, graduating in 1889. He moved immediately to Denver, and practiced law there continuously until his retirement recently.

Waterman was elected to the Senate in 1926, receiving a majority over five other candidates. He married Anna R. Cook, of Burlington, Vermont.

With Iowa Farm Strikers

Here is a scene from the Iowa "Farmers' Holiday" front. A picket or striking agrarians is shown as it stopped Holland Ruse, a truck operator of Tabor, who was on his way to Council Bluffs to sell his produce in defiance of the farmers' pact. Pleading that it would mean his ruin if his feet of corn-laden trucks were turned back, Ruse (right) was finally allowed to proceed. Four men were injured here in a fracas between farmers and deputies.

Fair Parade and at noon will be the guest at a get-acquainted luncheon at the Chittenden Hotel. On Wednesday she will be guest at a luncheon given by the F. & R. Lazarus Company honoring the eighty-eight boys and girls who will be in Columbus as the official representatives of the eighty-eight counties of the state.

Thursday noon a complimentary luncheon will be given Miss Washington by the members of the Ann Simpson Davis and Columbus Chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution. This luncheon will be at the Athletic Club. On Thursday afternoon, Miss Washington will be honored by a tea given at the governor's mansion.

Miss Washington's residence while in Columbus will be at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel.

Short addresses were given by Miss Gertrude Jones of Columbus, vice president of the Republican executive committee; Mrs. Mary Lee of Westerville, Remck Dunlap of Washington, D. C.; Judge Carrington Marshall, Judge Geger, both of Columbus; Judge Montgomery of Newark; John Vorhees of Columbus; David Lewis of New Lexington and Judge Marshall Fenton of Chillicothe.

Former Resident Of This City Weds In Impressive Capital Ceremony

Following is an account from the August 7, 1932, issue of The Sunday Star at Washington D. C. of the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Milor Seeds, daughter of Mrs. Seeds and the late Maj. Karl B. Seeds, all former residents of this city.

St. Thomas' Episcopal church was the scene of a military wedding of unusual charm yesterday afternoon, when Miss Elizabeth Milor Seeds, daughter of Mrs. Seeds and the late Maj. Karl B. Seeds, became the bride of Lieut. Horace King Whalen, U. S. A., son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Peyton Whalen of Bethesda, Md.

ALL-WHITE AFFAIR

The wedding was an all-white wedding, the bride and her attendants wearing white, and the floral arrangements in the church of white blossoms mingled with stately palms and trailing ferns. The Rev. Harry C. Goodman, assistant rector of the church, in the absence of Dr. C. Ernest Smith, officiated.

As the guests were assembling, Mr. J. Clarke Middleton gave a program recital, and Mr. H. Blane Cornwell of Baltimore gave vocal selections preceding the ceremony.

SERVICE IMPRESSIVE

The bride walked to the altar with her brother, Midshipman Elmore W. Seeds of the Naval Academy, who gave his sister in marriage. Her wedding gown was lovely, a princess model of ivory satin with long pointed sleeves, a square neckline and with a full train. Her veil of tulle was arranged in simple cap effect with a chain strap, and a face veil which she wore until after the service.

The veil was caught at the back with a spray of orange blossoms, which were worn by her paternal grandmother, Mrs. E. W. Seeds at her wedding. The bride carried a prayer book from which fell a shower of lilies of the valley. Miss Mary Harriman was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Georgie Thomas of Culpeper, Va.; Miss Isabel Allen of Washington and Montreal, Can.; Miss Elizabeth Sawtelle of Chevy Chase, Md.; and Miss Eleanor Reiman of Washington.

The maid of honor's gown was an imported princess model of em-broidered mousseline de soie with a cape collar. Miss Thomas and Miss Allen were in white mousseline de soie, designed with cape sleeve jackets and flared skirts and Miss Sawtelle's and Miss Reiman's frocks were designed of white mousseline de soie with ruffles at the hemline and edging the sleeves of the jacket.

OFFICERS PRESENT

Lieut. William Potter Turpin of Fort Meade, Md., was the best man and the ushers were Lieut. John C. Steele of Honolulu, Lieut. George Grunert, Lieut. Herbert B. Thatcher of Ft. Meade and Lieut. George R. Mather of Fort Myer, Va., all classmates of the bridegroom.

An informal reception for the wedding party and immediate members of the families followed at the home of Dr. E. H. Eichelberger. Lieut. and Mrs. Whalen will make their home at Fort Bragg, N. C.

The bridegroom graduated from the Military Academy at West Point in June of this year. A number of prenuptial parties were given in honor of the bride. She is a member of Alpha Theta Chi sorority.

CAMP TO CLOSE

The greatest camp that has ever graced Mount of Praise is just closing. Services were held all day Friday and Saturday. Rev. Paul Rees preached Saturday morning and then in the afternoon service there was a missionary meeting in which a splendid offering was given. Rev. A. L. Terry will preach at 8 p. m.

On Sunday, Rev. Rees will preach both morning and night with Rev. Charles Slater bringing the message in the afternoon. The camp of 1932 will close Sunday evening to meet in August, 1933, at Mount of Praise.

It needs to be recognized that the acceleration of production has resulted in the creation of vast quantities of goods which are by no means essential to life. A demand has been created for them by what we call a high standard of living.

Playing a great part in this is the creation of demand by newspaper advertising which is a science upon which the very life of modern trade and industry depends for non-essential products, as well as drawing attention to the sources from which can be obtained essential products.

That this is so can be gleaned from the fact that a higher standard of living, better wages and a higher consumption of goods are indicated by the cities whose newspapers carry the GREATEST AMOUNT OF ADVERTISING.

PERSIA SEEKS MILLIONAIRES

LONDON.—Twenty Indian multi-millionaires owning a combined fortune of $350,000,000 have been invited to leave their homes in Bombay and settle in Persia. The request made by the Persian Government is part of a scheme to set aside 1,000 square miles of Persian land for Indian parases whose ancestors were driven out of Persia more than 1,200 years ago.

JUDGE MAKES ODD RULING

BIRMINGHAM, Eng.—Legal history was made here when an expectant mother was granted a divorce decree to be speeded up and made absolute in two months so she might remarry and legitimize her child. The decision was made by England's famous bachelor-judge, Justice McCordie, who once again becomes the champion of the weak minority.

"Alice: Come home. All is FORGIVEN"

Few advertisements in your newspaper start that way. Yet most of them are just as personal, and almost as promising.

Manufacturers and merchants must know your needs and wants, or go out of business. They must know, for instance, that about the first of next month you'll be very much interested in a new hat, or a new lamp, or new towels. They must foresee your wishes—and have what you'll want when you want it.

And they do—constantly striving to suit, at the lowest possible prices. Then telling you in advertising of the gifts they have brought from the far corners of the earth, to please Your Royal Highness.

Read the advertisements in this paper. They are addressed to you—personally. They bring you news of better things to have and easier ways to live. Intimate news, of immediate interest.

The bridegroom graduated from the Military Academy at West Point in June of this year. A number of prenuptial parties were given in honor of the bride. She is a member of Alpha Theta Chi sorority.

CAMP TO CLOSE

The greatest camp that has ever graced Mount of Praise is just closing. Services were held all day Friday and Saturday. Rev. Paul Rees preached Saturday morning and then in the afternoon service there was a missionary meeting in which a splendid offering was given. Rev. A. L. Terry will preach at 8 p. m.

On Sunday, Rev. Rees will preach both morning and night with Rev. Charles Slater bringing the message in the afternoon. The camp of 1932 will close Sunday evening to meet in August, 1933, at Mount of Praise.

It needs to be recognized that the acceleration of production has resulted in the creation of vast quantities of goods which are by no means essential to life. A demand has been created for them by what we call a high standard of living.

Playing a great part in this is the creation of demand by newspaper advertising which is a science upon which the very life of modern trade and industry depends for non-essential products, as well as drawing attention to the sources from which can be obtained essential products.

That this is so can be gleaned from the fact that a higher standard of living, better wages and a higher consumption of goods are indicated by the cities whose newspapers carry the GREATEST AMOUNT OF ADVERTISING.

INSIDE—CAMP TO CLOSE—

PERSIA SEEKS MILLIONAIRES
LONDON.—Twenty Indian multi-millionaires owning a combined fortune of $350,000,000 have been invited to leave their homes in Bombay and settle in Persia. The request made by the Persian Government is part of a scheme to settle 1,000 square miles of Persian land for Indian parsons whose ancestors were driven out of Persia more than 1,200 years ago.

JUDGE MAKES ODD RULING
BIRMINGHAM, Eng.—Legal history was made here when an expectant mother was granted a divorce decree to be speeded up and made absolute in two months so she might remarry and legitimize her child. The decision was made by England's famous bachelor-judge, Justice McCardie, who once again becomes the champion of the weak minority.

Few advertisements in your newspaper start that way. Yet most of them are just as personal, and almost as promising.

Manufacturers and merchants must know your needs and wants, or go out of business. They must know, for instance, that about the first of next month you'll be very much interested in a new hat, or a new lamp, or new towels. They must foresee your wishes—and have what you'll want when you want it.

And they do—constantly striving to suit, at the lowest possible prices. Then telling you in advertising of the gifts they have brought from the far corners of the earth, to please Your Royal Highness.

Read the advertisements in this paper. They are addressed to you—personally. They bring you news of better things to have and easier ways to live. Intimate news, of immediate interest.
